THE FORLORN HOPE. - The Douglas ticket finds the South a hard road to travel. It wins quite as much support from old whigs they were malignant : and Americans as from democrats, and of the southern democracy is Breckinridgewise. Here and there, in such cities as Louisville, St Louis, New Orleans and Mobile, much of whose populations are in cause, and enthusiastic meetings to respond to his nomination. But outside the centers in the interior, and among the leaders of public opinion, whatever Douglas feeling there may be is over-awed by the general tide of opposing sentiment, and finds but little more response than pure republicanism itself. There is not a southern state, save perhaps, Missouri, in which Douglas will not be the third candidate, and the contest lies strictly between Breckenridge and Bell. About half the South may be regarded as doubtful between these two caudidates ; the rest, according to present appearences, must be conceded to Breckenridge. The state of affairs at Naples had improved, and the agitation had somewhat subsided. A dispatch from Turin says that Baron Talleyrand has been instructed by his Government to insist that Count Cavour should give due considerato the evertures of the King of Naples, relative to the formation of an Italian Confederation, and the more so as France had counceled these overtures. We have but little news from Sicily. No active movement had been made. The universal suffrage of the people would be taken on the question of the annexation of Sicily to Piedmont. Numerous arrests had taken place at Palermo of former functionaries. Garibaldi had sent some columns of soldiers to reestablish order in the interior of the island. His Ministry being unpopular, a new Ministry had been formed. It is said a skirmish took place near Messina on the 30th ult., between some detachments of Garibaldi's forces and Royal troops, The same ardor for driving the Neopolitans out of the island continues to prevail. Agitation has increased in Rome since the outbreak in Naples, and all letters say that a crisis is imminent, as the attitude of parties toward each other was provocative of

Me Everett's Fourth of July Oration

We make some extracts from Edward Everett's admirable oration on the Fourth of July at Boston, in vindication of America and its Institutions from a recent adverse judgment in the British Parliament. The first striking passage is this in illustraof the idea that the failure of our institutions would be almost as much a matter of regret and shame to Englishmen as to Americans :

The suggestion which I propose to com-

THE PERSIAN FEVER CHARM HE PERSIAN FEVER CHARM.

For the prevention and cure of Fever and Ague and Bilicus Fevers. This wonderfol remedy was brought to the knowledge of the present proprietors by a friend who has been a great traveler in Persia and the Holy Land.

While going down the river Euphrains, be experienced a severe attack of Fever and Ague. On discovering his condition, one of the Boatmen took from his person an Amstet, saying, "Fever this and so Fever will tunch year." Although incrediators as to its virtues; the compiled, and experienced insmediate relief, and has since always found it an effectual protection from all malarious complaints.

On further investigation he found that the boatman attributed to it miraculous powers, and said that it carld only be obtained from the Prieste of the Sun. Sometime afterwards, the gentleman in conversing with a Priest obtained from him the secret of its preparation, and ascertained where the medicand herbs weer found, of which it was compounded. The wonderful virtues of this article have induced a full belief in the minds of the natives in the miraculous healing powers of their Priests.

Since his return to America, it has been tried with the Bappiest effect by several Ladies and Gentlemen of high character, who have given it the meat unqualified praise. This remark having been a specific in Persia for hundreds of years for the prevention and cone of Fever and Ague and Billous Fevers—is now efforcd to the American people.
